ANOTHER DEPOSITOR AFTER LEONARD HUYCK.—Bergeant Greer, of the Third ward, on Monday arrested a man named James Story, for threatening the Mis of Leonard Hayek, the president of the late Merchanis' National Bank. Mr. Story was taken before Justice Giberson, where the evidence showed that he went to the place lakely occupied by the Merchanis' Sational Bank, and made a demand for maney which he said he had deposited there before the bank closed, and upon falling to obtain it, draw a revolver upon Mr. Huyck. J. V. N. Huyck, a brother, at this time entered the office, and immediately had Mr. Story arrested. Justice Giberson imposed a fine of $20, and directed him to give security for peace. Meszrs. Carlisle and McPherson, counsel for the accused, would have give to be hill, but he refused to give bail, and was committed to jail in default. Mr. Story is a gentlemne of 50 years of age, and respectably connected. He said he had deposited about $3,000 with the national bank, and was unable at his age to loss such as amount. Mr. J. V. N. Hayek and his brother intended to pay off all the depositors, and had commenced by borrowing $10,000, but the Government interfered and the money was returned; but he is again making arrangements with that object in view.

Drowners.—Vesterday, Jabout 12 o'clock, a boy standing near the canal bridge at Green street, in Georgetown, discovered the body of a man near the lock gale. Some persons in the neighborhood were notified, the body was taken from the water, and Coroner Woodward held an inquest. From the evidence before the jury it was shown that the body was that of Charles Rupprecht, a German, lately employed as burkeeper in Emrich's restaurant on Monday last, and left there about one o'clock. The jury rendered a vendlet that the deceased was as the restaurant on Monday last, and left there about one o'clock. The jury rendered a vendlet that the deceased was a theory of the opinion that he was crossing the canal on the footway on Monday night, (worknew being ongaged in repairing the b HOTHER DEPOSITOR AFTER LEONARD HUYCK
